LionHeart

Support
After Bereavement

LionHeart is the charity for RICS professionals and their families. Every year, we support RICS members who have suffered a bereavement. All of our support also extends to the widows/ widowers and dependant families of past or present RICS professionals who have died.

Our highly experienced team is here to support you through this difficult time in your life. Sometimes, just having the time and space to talk to someone in confidence can make a huge difference.

There are a number of ways we support people who have suffered a bereavement.

Emotional and practical support

Losing someone you love can be a devastating experience and it is quite common to feel completely overwhelmed. Your LionHeart support officer can help you through the first bewildering weeks and months, whether that is with practical support or simply being there to talk and offer emotional support.

Counselling

Everybody experiences loss differently and there is no right or wrong way to grieve for someone you have lost. Our free, professional counselling will allow you to talk through your feelings and concerns and help you find ways of coping following a bereavement. We can also support your family members.

The financial support was invaluable and so reassuring in those early days after the unexpected death of my husband.

Finances

If you have suffered a bereavement that has left you struggling to cope financially, we might be able to offer help in the form of a one-off or monthly grant for a period of time. Our friendly team can also help you work out if you are entitled to any state support or benefits and can even help you with applying for help.

Access to legal advice

The law surrounding wills, inheritance and probate can be very complex. We can offer a free referral to our legal partners who will be able to give initial advice on your rights and what your next steps are to help to give you peace of mind at a difficult time.
